How to BEST support your local food bank:

1 - Ask specifically what is needed!
Certain things we just never just never run out of, like green beans and corn, because that’s what people typically think of right away.
Cake mixes and such are not practical for most clients on many levels: lack of cooking equipment, baking skills, or working ovens.

2 - Be mindful of the package size: Many of our clients need product in small packages for a variety of reasons: limited storage space, poor cooking facilities, limited ability to transport or even physically handle large quantities. Large bulk packages are not ideal, and many food banks do not have the appropriate equipment or licensing to repack large volumes.

3 - How to contact your local food banks: Google search results are pretty accurate. Also, dial 2-1-1 on your phone, the Community Information Line. With either of those resources, you can find a food bank’s phone number, email address, and website to find more information.

4 - Not a shopper? That’s okay! Food Banks can take monetary donations, which allow them to get more bang for their buck! Food Banks can also purchase dairy vouchers from the local stores with your donations.
